1. INTRODUCTION

The primary audience for this document is certificate holders, to assist them with setting up and managing effective response and remediation systems. This document can also be used by Auditors and Certification Bodies (CBs) to verify whether certificate holders have implemented remediation activities in accordance with the Protocol and within set timelines, as well as by civil society and government offices to support and collaborate with certificate holders.

This Remediation Protocol ("Protocol") is part of the Rainforest Alliance Agricultural Standard ("Standard"), linked to requirement 5.1.4 of the Standard. It is applicable to all crops and all certificate holders that wish to become or remain certified. The Standard requires certificate holders to set up a system to assess-and-address discrimination, forced labor, child labor and workplace violence and harassment in working with the certified crops, which includes remediating grievances as per below figure 1.

This Protocol is mandatory for all certificate holders and organizations in or joining the Rainforest Alliance certification program. It also offers practical guidance about the steps certificate holders may take to effectively remediate not only cases of discrimination, forced labor, child labor, workplace violence and harassment but also any other human rights violations specified in chapter 5, in line with the Rainforest Alliance Sustainable Agriculture Standard Requirement 5.1.4.

The Protocol may also be a helpful resource for certification bodies, trade unions and other labor rights organizations, NGOs, and civil society actors who are working with or alongside certificate holders.

The Remediation Protocol contains both mandatory steps as well as guidance on how to implement the mandatory steps. In line with ISO documents, mandatory steps will be introduced by “shall” whereas optional steps will be introduced by “may”. Examples:

Mandatory: certificate holders shall implement corrections to remediate all known cases within 12 weeks.

Good practice / recommended: certificate holders may collaborate with government agencies to implement corrections or corrective actions.

What is remediation?
Remediation is the process of righting the wrong after a human rights violation is uncovered, (internally) reported, and verified. The United Nations Guiding Principles (UNGPs) require states and businesses (including agricultural businesses) to take steps to ensure that workers have access to effective remedy when labor or human rights violations take place.

Remediation by certificate holders can cover a wide range of actions to restore the situation of the affected person to before the incident happened, including financial and non-financial compensation, repayment of recruitment fees, unpaid wages, overtime or illegal wage deductions, apologies or repatriation, and shall always include a guarantee of non-repetition. If the incident involved a perpetrator, for instance in the event of sexual harassment cases, actions may also include punishments including employment termination and referral to state criminal investigations.

Link with grievance mechanism
For the system to effectively remediate cases, it shall be closely linked with the certificate holder’s grievance mechanism in accordance with the Rainforest Alliance Sustainable Agriculture Standard core requirement 1.5.1. The grievance mechanism can be used by internal and external stakeholders including all workers, group members and staff, buyers, suppliers and communities to report alleged grievances linked to the certified farm, management, employee, group member and/or certification activities and receive a response.

Link with Gender Committee
All cases related to gender-based violence and harassment at work may be remediated through the Gender Committee.

Link with risk-based approach
The risk-based approach that the Rainforest Alliance requires certificate holders to implement will support those to identify risks and to prevent violations from taking place by tackling the causes of those risks. In high risk environments, certificate holders are required to conduct an in-depth risk assessment (as per Standard Requirement 5.1.5), which will help identify root causes of pervasive risks and will support certificate holders in taking actions to overcome those root causes.
Below figure 2 displays the steps outlined to prevent cases from arising and remediating them when they do arise.

2. PRINCIPLES OF EFFECTIVE REMEDIATION

The following elements shall be key elements of an effective remediation system:

a. Safety, welfare and best interests of people involved

   When implementing remediation measures, the safety, welfare, and best interest of the affected individual shall always come first. To the extent possible, the identity of affected persons should remain confidential. When remediying a case involving children, certificate holders shall protect the child’s best interests and safety.

b. Human rights principles, national law & engaging with law enforcement

   Remedy shall be delivered in accordance with international human rights principles, national law and this Rainforest Alliance Protocol. In cases where labor and human rights abuses violate local criminal law, the certificate holder may cooperate with the local authorities at the discretion and wish of the victim of the crime. It is important that the person/committee in charge of assess-and-address, as well as those in charge of the grievance mechanisms, have clear guidance on engaging law enforcement or the local authorities.

c. Prevention

   The outcome of a remediation process shall always include measures to ensure that the violation does not recur, based on an analysis of its root causes, which is further detailed in chapter 4 of this Protocol. This can be done through further investigation, review of policies and procedures, and engagement with workers’ representatives, labor providers and buyers to improve early warning systems and response.
3. SETTING UP A REMEDIATION SYSTEM

The following are steps to prepare for effective remedy.

3.1 Appointing responsible parties

The certificate holder’s management shall be held accountable for ensuring that Requirement 5.1.4 is implemented and that remediation follows steps outlined in this Remediation Protocol.

Requirement 5.1.1 of the Standard requires that each certificate holder sets up an Assess-and-Address Committee responsible for tackling discrimination, child labor, forced labor, and workplace violence and harassment (“person/committee”). This person/committee manages the implementation of the Protocol, including developing a response and remedy plan. Human resources departments often deal with labor related issues. As such, someone from human resources may represent management in the Assess-and-Address Committee. The Assess-and-Address Committee is responsible for remedying verified human rights cases in accordance with Requirement 5.1.4. The Grievance Mechanism is responsible for the investigation and resolution of cases, including referrals of verified human rights grievances to the Assess-and-Address Committee.

Requirement 5.1.3 of the Standard requires the Assess-and-Address Committees of certificate holders to document all identified possible cases and the identified remediation for each of these cases. It also requires certificate holders to document monitoring activities, which includes following up on the remediation of identified cases. The auditor will check on the internal reporting, ensuring it is accurate and up to date.

3.2 Preparing a remedy plan

Even in low risk environments for labor and human rights violations, the Rainforest Alliance requires certificate holders to have a basic remedy plan in place, as this helps them to respond quickly when a case is identified. Below are the steps (figure 3) to develop a remedy plan:

The three steps to develop a remedy plan are explained below

1) Map stakeholders

The person/committee responsible for assess-and-address, including for remediation, may cooperate with external actors, such as NGOs and government, to support implementation of risk mitigation, monitoring, and/or remediation.

Certificate holders can use below example overview to create a basic overview of response and remedy stakeholders for each of the topics.

Questions that may guide you to identify stakeholders:

a. Which organization works locally/at the district level and what direct response or remediation support can they offer when a case of child labor, forced labor, discrimination, violence and harassment or other labor rights violations is discovered? See box below with suggested stakeholders for different cases?

b. Which organisations/government offices / supply chain partners at the national level can support remediation or prevent a case from reoccurring (e.g. training, advocacy for law change, income support / income generation)?
Potential stakeholders in remediating human rights cases

- Members of the Gender Committee required under requirement 1.6.1 of the Standard may be involved in cases of gender-based discrimination or gender-based violence and harassment and may be involved in safeguarding the victims’ safety and wellbeing, including in the follow-up;
- Unions or workers’ organizations present may participate in the development of plans for addressing root causes of systemic labor violations, as well as monitoring their implementation;
- Community-based organizations, community and religious leaders, schools, health services, government agencies and others may provide support services to former child laborers, victims of trafficking and forced labor;
- NGO’s, human rights organizations and experts, such as child protection or other experts, may be consulted for training, or to assist with assessing the support that is needed for long-term victim rehabilitation/restitution;
- Supply chain partners, including buyers, retailers and industry bodies may be able to support addressing systemic issues that negatively impact farmers and workers.

2) Write down your Remedy Plan

Using the Management Plan’s three questions on remedy, create an overview of who in your team is responsible for remedy, and with which local remedy partners (e.g. department of social affairs, education, women’s affairs, civil society, supply chain partners) they will collaborate where possible. The Remedy Plan is part of the Management Plan, and is also included as an Annex to this Remediation Protocol.

3) Training and awareness raising

Once you have agreed on the remedy plan, a training of the Management team shall take place on everyone’s role when a potential case is discovered or reported, in line with Core Requirement 5.1.1. Creating awareness amongst cooperative members and workers about the Grievance Mechanism and Remedy Protocol in accordance with 5.1.4 helps ensure workers and community members are aware of their rights and can access remediation.

4.2 Remediation process

The above numbered steps are described in further detail below, containing more examples of corrections and corrective actions. The Rainforest Alliance understands the different contexts certificate holders operate in and that remediation might look different in each context.

1) Reported human rights case shared with Grievance Mechanism

- As noted above, the case can be reported through the certificate holder’s own monitoring system, through the grievance mechanism, through an audit, or through an outside party / media report.
- Complainant / affected individual is contacted within 24-48 hrs, with acknowledgement of receipt of case and explanation of process.

2) Safeguarding and consent: The safety and protection of the at-risk individual, shall be top priority. If there is an immediate risk of harm to workers’ mental or physical health in an identified/reported case, support is given, where needs be from external specialist parties, only after obtaining full consent and while protecting the confidentiality of the individuals.

- If the affected individual is a child, an attempt is made to ascertain his/her age using a child rights-based approach. If a child, the child’s family/caretakers is contacted to participate in the remediation process.
- The child’s family/caretakers must give their consent for any further steps to be taken.
- Together with the affected person and his/her family, where applicable, the necessary support, services, and follow-up steps are identified.
- In critical cases, where individuals might be in immediate danger (e.g. revenge for reporting rape, corruption etc), the at-risk individual may need to be brought to a secure and confidential location and be provided food/water as needed.
• Individual is informed of the remediation process and asked for his/her informed consent for further investigation and / or support.
• Persons accused of wrongdoing are suspended from their roles pending further investigation and separated from the victim where appropriate.

3) Grievance Mechanism Committee investigates case: In the short term (approx. 4 weeks), the Grievance Committee investigates the case.
   • The victim’s statement (and that of the family, as appropriate) is documented in a standardized format and all information related to the case is held in a secure location and kept confidential.
   • With the victim’s consent, or in the case of children, the consent of parents/caretakers, additional information is sought and documented from other parties, such as workers. Documentation can include photographs or other forms of evidence.
   • For each case, determine which of your identified stakeholders in your Remedy Plan (see figure 3) should be contacted and engaged with to investigate and remedy the case (CH level, Local stakeholders, National stakeholders). E.g. for a critical child labor cases, you might need support from a child protection expert, the education department, family income support; for sexual violence cases, you might need medical, legal and psychosocial support, including from women’s organizations.
   • Contact external stakeholders, as relevant, including child protection services, labor consultants, and gender specialists to investigate cases and identify possible remediation channels.

4) Grievance Mechanism Committee conducts severity test
   • This test consists of four questions. ‘Yes’ to any question means this case shall be expedited internally to management, who may reach out for external support to authorities, relevant experts and possibly the Rainforest Alliance.
   • If a case is critical, the GM together with Management needs to assess criminality (see step 5) of the case, and possibly involve the Rainforest Alliance and / or the CB for follow-up action.

<thead>
<tr>
<th>Severity Test Questions</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>'Yes' to any of these questions requires referral of the case to management</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1. Is the situation of the worker/child/potential whistleblowers life-threatening?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2. Is this a systemic incident, meaning there are multiple cases of this issue on the farm/site?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3. Can the situation have lifelong, negative impacts on the welfare of the worker/child, including physical and/or psychological damage?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4. Is there evidence that the management or staff member knew that the violation was taking place, but continued / approved the practice?</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
5) Grievance Mechanism Committee (GMC) conducts assessment of criminality & if need be, refers case to authorities/ law enforcement

- Grievance Mechanism Committee and management and/or the Certification Body (if the CB identified the violation) assesses the circumstances as they relate to the applicable criminal laws of the jurisdiction.
- If criminality is involved in a violation found, it may be reported to the relevant government authorities who are responsible for the legal follow up.
- Protection of the affected individual (and his/her family and reporter) shall always be the top priority. Such referrals shall not be made if they could put victims at risk of further harm and should not be made without victim (or parents’ / caretakers’) consent. The decision should be communicated to the victim, family and the perpetrator(s).

6) GMC concludes investigation and decides on remediation steps

The GM, after reviewing all evidence (in critical cases, together with management, A&A or Gender Committee and external experts), concludes investigation and decides the remediation steps. Then, the GM hands over case to the responsible committee, which could be the assess-and-address or the Gender Committee depending on the type of case (e.g. gender based sexual harassment or violence cases will go to the gender committee).

7) Gender / Assess-and-Address Committee meets with alleged victims / others involved, discuss rights, resources and responsibilities with individuals involved and proposed remediation measures (corrections and corrective actions) including disciplinary action against the perpetrator if required:

- Parties can agree or disagree.
- If they disagree, parties have the option to appeal through hearing panel which should be set up independently from the farm. A CB or other external labor advisor can support this.

8) Once affected parties agree, the Assess-and-Address Committee refers cases to responsible internal and external stakeholders to implement corrections and corrective actions as part of remediation plan and oversees the implementation.

A list of suggested remediation actions for the different violations is included below. Each situation and context are unique and as such, this list is not mandatory nor exhaustive, but includes suggested steps for both short-term corrections and long-term corrective actions per topic.

9) Short term (12 weeks) corrections are implemented at company, affected individual and community level and a plan for the implementation of corrective actions is completed.

10) Long term (52 weeks) corrective actions are implemented at company, affected individual and community level.
11) The assess-and-address Committee monitors the implementation of corrections and corrective actions

- Corrections and corrective actions are regularly reviewed to ensure they are implemented according to plan and effective.
- Serious cases that have led to temporary suspensions or decertification are audited by CB.
- The Assess-and-Address Committee actively solicits input from workers on their satisfaction with systems and remedies.
- All phases of remediation are documented using standard formats.

12) The assess-and-address Committee together with management regularly reviews the type of cases, internal reports and the remediation activities, to close cases and ensure system is fit for purpose.

When calculated by volume, workers’ pay must equal at least the minimum wage based on a 48-hour working week or national legal working hours limit. • Pay-related issues: Immediately pay any excessively delayed wages due to workers and any unallowed deductions taken from workers’ pay, and change policies on timing/frequency of payment. If immediate repayment is not possible, establish a time-bound plan for repayment.

• Recruitment-related debt: Assess amount of debt the workers hold and ensure that it is repaid or establish time-bound repayment plan and responsibilities for repayment.

• Fraudulent/coercive recruitment: Re-negotiate contract terms that were initially misunderstood/misrepresented and sign new contract. Directly contract with workers rather than indirectly through labor brokers.

• Military/prison labor: Farms/sites must immediately stop using military labor. Any prison labor working on the farm/site must freely provide their consent to work and must be given equal treatment with other workers.

• Confinement/intimidation: Farms/sites must communicate to all workers of their rights under the law to freely leave the job. This can be done through their contracts, taken with workers’ consent. Workers must be provided pay slips showing hours worked (regular and overtime) and/or volume produced, calculation of wages and deductions, and wages paid. Management should confirm that personnel responsible for wage payment are correctly trained in calculations and requirements. Management should make available personnel who speak the appropriate languages to explain/answer workers’ questions about wage calculations and pay slips. Management should assign responsibility to a member of staff to conduct a periodic review of pay records to identify instances of underpayment, delayed payment, and other inconsistencies.

• Recruitment-related debt, fraudulent/coercive recruitment: Full reimbursement of all recruitment fees, back wages, illegal deductions and other compensation owed.

• Training on recruitment practices, seasonal and temporary workers, forced labor, debt bondage, labor exploitation by intermediaries, loans systems. Farms/sites must ensure that any labor providers used are licensed or certified by the appropriate government authority, if one exists. Farms/sites must have written contracts with each labor provider, requiring that labor providers abide by Rainforest Alliance worker protection standards. When possible, farms/sites should directly contract workers who are recruited by labor providers. For workers whose direct employer is a labor provider, the Assess-and-Address monitoring system should check periodically with some of these workers to ensure that their pay, working conditions, etc. are as promised by the labor provider. Workers recruited through labor providers information posted in the workplace, a workers’ organization, one of the committees, or other means. For workers living on site, certificate holder should communicate their rights to freedom of movement on and off the farm outside working hours. should be treated equally with other workers and provided the same information about their protections under the Rainforest Alliance standard. The Assess-and-Address monitoring system should periodically check with workers who are recruited through labor providers, to see if they owe any debts related to recruitment fees.

- Military/prison labor: Implement a process to periodically check with prison laborers to ensure they are receiving the same treatment as other workers with respect to contracts, pay, working conditions, and all other worker protections in the RA standard.

- Confinement/intimidation: Implement a process to periodically check with workers to see if they feel threatened by security guards.

|                                | Remove offensive, sexually explicit calendars, literature and other materials from the workplace
|                                | The corrective measures should be accompanied by an informative conversation/training on human rights and appropriate behaviour, according to the issue.
|                                | Training on bullying, harassment and violence at work, appropriate behavior and grievance mechanism of managers, supervisors, guards, workers, Gender Committee
|                                | Strengthen the Gender Committee and other relevant women’s groups on the knowledge of these issues, how to recognize them and how to deal with them
|                                | Conduct a yearly safety audit of the workplace while involving female workers and implement measures to address identified risky areas
|                                | Reach out to women’s and human rights organizations and involve them in remediation measures like training, giving support to victims
|                                | Arrange saving schemes, income generating activities or credit facilities for parents so that they are less reliant on the children’s work and can support their education.
|                                | Support the community to request improvements in local school provision. This could include, for example, helping group members to write to the local Education Office to ask a school to be established in their community
|                                | Organization and training of youth older than 18 on occupational health and safety to perform hazardous activities, such as spraying
